CONTRIBUTORS

ROMAN R. DUBINSKI's dissertation at Toronto, 1969, was on Royalist political poetry 1640-60, and he is currently working on a critical edition of the poems of Alexander Brome. He has published in English Quarterly and Renaissance and Reformation.

JAMES GRAY, who has published Johnson's Sermons: A Study and co-edited volume IX of the Yale edition of The Works of Samuel Johnson: The Religious Writing, is at present writing a book on "Samuel Johnson and the Eighteenth Century Stage." His teaching interests include literary criticism and aesthetics, comedy and satire, literary biography, and theatre history.

ISOBEL MCKENNA is a doctoral candidate at Queen's University. She has already published in the Journal of Canadian Fiction, and is editing the short stories of Robert J. Stead. Her teaching interests include Canadian, Commonwealth, and comparative literature, Chaucer, and women in literature.

IRA BRUCE NADEL did his dissertation at Cornell (1970) on George Eliot and Thomas Hardy; has published in the Journal of the American Oriental Society, Midstream, and Studies in Short Fiction; and is currently holding a Canada Council Leave Fellowship to pursue studies in Clough and Beatrice Webb. His teaching interests include the ethnic literature of Canada and the United States.

JAMES S. STONE's article is the second of two on Meredith; the first appeared in our last issue, I, 4, Winter 1975. He is founding editor of The English Quarterly, has published a number of articles, and is now writing a book on Meredith's politics as seen in his life and his work.

MICHAEL STEIG has written on Dickens, Hardy, Eliot, and others from a psycho-critical viewpoint, on Phiz's illustrations for Dickens, on the grotesque, and on George Cruikshank. He has recently completed a full-length study of Hablot K. Browne ("Phiz"), and contributed an article on Shelley, Hardy, and Lawrence for the Summer 1975 issue of ESC.

JAMES WOODFIELD completed his dissertation on Christopher Fry at University of British Columbia in 1971. He has published in Modern Drama, was awarded a Canada Council Leave Fellowship for 1974-75, and is completing a book on the "Backgrounds to British Drama, 1889-1914." Formerly Drama Editor and Business Manager of The Fiddlehead, he is now an Associate Editor and Business Manager for ESC.

ALAN R. YOUNG holds degrees from the universities of Bristol, East Anglia, Alberta, and East Africa. He has published in the Dalhousie Review, SEL, UTQ, and History Today, and has written a book on Ernest Buckler for McClelland & Stewart's Canadian Writers series. In 1973 he held a fellowship at the Folger Library, where he did the bulk of his research for the Othello paper.
